LIGHTNING BOLT IGNITES A BARN

Modern Structure on Lottie Trees
Farm Near Manilla is Destroyed
by Fire Today.

EFFORT MADE TO SAVE HOUSE

12 Tons of Hay, 500 Bushels of Corn,
Farm Implements and Live Stock Destroyed.

A barn on the Lottie Trees farm, located a half mile west of Manilla was destroyed by fire early this morning. A large quantity of hay, farming implements and some live stock were also lost. The barn was fired by a bolt of lightning which hit at five-fifteen o'clock this morning.

It is barely possible that the loss will run into the thousands. William Webster, the tenant on the place, could not be reached to learn his estimate of the loss. It is said to be partially covered by insurance. The farm is the property of Mrs. Lottie Trees of Indianapolis, formerly of Manilla.

In addition a large double corn crib, containing five hundred bushels of corn, was burned up. Twelve tons of hay and a number of valuable farming implements and harness, stored in the barn, were lost in the flames.

A cow in the basement of the barn was killed by lightning, and her calf, which was on the first floor, was burned up in the fire. They were both the property of J. L. Webster of Manilla, father of the tenant on the farm. The tenant has been unable to locate his pet dog since the blaze, and presumes that it, too, was consumed in the flames. Other live stock in the barn escaped.

It is thought that the lightning ran in on the iron rod on the roof of the barn from which the hay fork was suspended. This belief is supposed by the fact that the tenant, when he first discovered the fire, found that the ropes attached to the hay fork were in flames. Two loads of hay were left in the barn over night, and the burning ropes ignited the hay, causing the fire to spread rapidly.

Not more than three-quarters of an hour elapsed from the time the fire was discovered until the barn was in ruins and the sidewalls caved in. The fire spread with remarkable rapidity and was soon beyond control. The alarm was spread just as soon as the blaze was discovered, but as the town of Manilla is a half mile away, the efforts of a "bucket brigade," when it did arrive, were fruitless.

The barn had probably been on fire ten minutes when it was discovered by the tenant. The fact that the wind was from the southwest, and was blowing the sparks and flames from the barn toward the house, which is located about a hundred and fifty feet to the northeast, caused Webster to devote all of his efforts toward saving the house. Much of the household goods were taken out.

The fact that the wind changed its course probably saved the house from destruction. But the change of the wind was not without evil result. It caused the large double crib containing five hundred bushels of corn to be ignited and consumed by the fire.

The barn was modern in every respect. Many people declare that it was the largest barn in Rush county.

THE WEATHER

Thunder showers this afternoon. Generally fair tonight and Thursday.

PLAN UNION DELIVERY

Rushville Merchants Investigate System at Greensburg.

L. L. Allen and Alva Newhouse, Rushville grocers, were in Greensburg yesterday to investigate the working of a union delivery system that is being used there. The merchants were very favorably impressed with the worth of the system, and it is barely possible that a similar system will be established here if the merchants will take up with the scheme.

SHE DIDN'T KNOW ALBERT STEVENS

Attorney at Bar Counsels With Client at Jail and is Made Unwilling Prisoner.

SHERIFF'S WIFE PARTICULAR

Albert Stevens, a young attorney, was never locked up in jail but once. That time was last night. Although Albert was behind the bars only ten minutes it seemed like two hours. Since his trial at the county jail it has been suggested by Albert's friends that he extend his acquaintance list or have his picture put in the newspapers so his smiling countenance will be familiar to everyone.

When George Avery of near Milroy was arrested last night, he asked that Mr. Stevens be sent to him in the capacity of an attorney. Policeman John Wolters took the attorney to jail and told him he would return in a few moments. But Stevens finished his business and pounded on the door to attract attention. Mrs. Bebout, wife of Sheriff Clata Bebout, came to learn what the noise was about. Stevens said he wanted out. But not Mrs. Bebout. She didn't know Mr. Stevens, attorney at law and counselor at the bar. She is very particular who she lets in and out of jail, particularly out. The result was Mr. Stevens had to remain in jail until the policeman returned and identified him.

STOPS MILK SALE AT ONE GROCERY

Pure Food Inspector Takes Sample
From Each Dairy to be Tested
For Butterfat.

FINDS CONDITIONS ARE GOOD

C. L. Hutchins of Indianapolis, inspector from the pure food and drug department of the State board of health, spent yesterday and today in Rushville inspecting meat markets, public eating kitchens, drug stores, candy kitchens and grocery stores. He is said to have told one merchant that he found every place satisfactory with the exception of one grocery store.

Incidentally the inspector paid a visit to the Rushville dairies, a number of which have sprung up in Rushville in the last year. He took a sample of milk from each dairy and sent it to Indianapolis for a test. If the samples do not test three per cent butterfat, which is the limit according to the law, the dairyman will have to improve or quit business. The inspector is said to have found milk in one grocery store that contained a great deal of dirt, and he notified the grocer he would have to stop selling it or he would be prosecuted.

LAY PLANS FOR BARGAIN DAY

Merchants Turn Out Well to Discuss
"Big Wednesday" Preparation
at Association Meeting.

GOODS WILL BE GIVEN AWAY

It is Reported That Many Inquiries
About Event Are Being Made—Band Concert Assured.

A good crowd of merchants was out last night for the special meeting of the Retail Merchants Association to talk over plans for the first "Big Wednesday" which will be held a week from today. It was first planned to hold the initial bargain day today, but the date was postponed a week on account of the close proximity of the first date to the Fourth of July.

The merchants reported that the public interest in the day was great. This, they declare, was proved by the fact that a number of inquiries had been made by their customers concerning the probable date of the day.

The new scheme that will be tried this time promises to meet with great success. Each bill announcing the bargains each member of the association is to offer on next Wednesday will be numbered. The bills will be sent through the mails and the recipients may bring the bills to this city and claim their rewards.

Each merchant will give away a valuable article. That article will be numbered and the person who holds the bill with the number corresponding will receive the article. In addition each member of the association represented on the bill will offer a bargain on some one thing in his stock for that day.

The amusement for the crowd that is expected has not been neglected. Each member of the association will receive tickets for the motion picture shows in accordance with the amount of money he pays to help to defray the expenses of the day. These will be given out to customers, and will be good for admission to the three motion picture shows only on "Big Wednesday."

It was reported at the meeting last night that arrangements had been made with the Rushville concert band to give a free concert on this day.

The circular letter which will be sent out in an effort to get new members will be mailed in a few days. This letter sets forth the worth of organization and secures the belief that the Merchants Association is merely an organization to further the retailer's business.

In the letter it is announced that a special meeting will be held Wednesday, July 24, at which all persons will be invited in an effort to learn if people are interested in the future welfare of Rushville and want to help to make it prosper.

TO ADVERTISE FOR BIDS

On Repairing County Power and Heating Plant.

The board of commissioners were in session a short time this morning and decided to advertise for bids for the repair of the county power and heating plant and for bids on the repairing of the floor in the court house assembly room. The bids will be received at the regular meeting of the board August 5. Bids were also advertised for a bridge in Ripley township.

FORCES AGENT TO HAND OVER COIN

George Avery, While Intoxicated
Pulls Off "Near" Hold-up at Big Four Station in Milroy.

CAUSES GREAT EXCITEMENT

Sheriff Brings Him Here Where he Pays Fine of One Dollar and Costs.

George Avery, a farm laborer living with his brother-in-law Carl Nook four and one-half miles southwest of Milroy, created a disturbance in Milroy late yesterday afternoon while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, and Sheriff Bebout had to be called before the little town regained its normal composure. Avery's little spree cost him one dollar and costs, amounting to about $22.

It was not the sight of a drunken man that disturbed the tranquility of the town and caused the excitement, but a "near" hold-up of the Big Four agent, Joe Michael. Avery went to the railway station and demanded a ticket to Indianapolis, placing a twenty dollar bill on the counter at the ticket office window. Michael left the bill on the counter and turned to the safe to get the change. When he reappeared at the window with the change and the ticket, Avery had placed the twenty dollar bill back in his pocket. Michael demanded the money and Avery demanded his change and the ticket, declaring that the agent had taken the bill from the counter.

The Big Four agent refused to give up the ticket or the change until he had the $20. Avery was peevish and drawing a revolver from his pocket forced Michael to hand over the ticket and the change. Thus the ticket agent was out $19.10 in actual money and a ticket to Indianapolis valued at ninety cents. Tony Barlow, the agent's assistant, was a witness to the transaction and the word soon spread that the Big Four agent had been held up. Sheriff Bebout was notified and with Policeman Wolter hastened to Milroy.

The fact that a drunken man was carrying a revolver greatly excited the people of Milroy and no effort was made by the officers in the squire's court there to arrest him. The sheriff and policeman arrived just as the train Avery intended taking pulled in and the officers had little difficulty in making the arrest. Sheriff Bebout told Avery what was wanted and he came without making any trouble. When taken, Avery did not have the revolver and it developed that he had left it at the bank immediately after securing the ticket. The Big Four agent was refunded the money.

Avery, it seems, has a back account of $300 or $350, and before coming here with the officers drew $60 with which to pay his fine. He was only in jail a short time when taken before Squire Kratzer and paid his fine. Avery left last night for a few days' visit in Indianapolis.

The direct cause of the trouble is said to have been a political argument which Avery had yesterday with his brother-in-law, Carl Nook. Avery is a follower of Roosevelt and Nook is a red-hot Democrat. The political discussion was very heated and Avery became angry. His anger "drove him to drink," and he wasn't over it when he lit in Milroy.

TAKEN TO HOME.

Sheriff Bebout went to Spiceland today to place Mildred, Novilla and Paul Stamm, children of Mrs. Flora Stamm of Glenwood in the home there. The case against Mrs. Stamm was heard yesterday in juvenile court by special judge J. T. Arbuckle.

HAY FEVER COMES EARLIER

Victims Are Already Suffering With August Malady.

Hay fever seems to be getting in its work in this territory early this season, as several victims of the ailment are complaining that they are suffering from the disease, which has attacked them several weeks earlier than usual. One victim states that the disease usually attacks him about the middle of August, but last year it attacked him the first of that month and this year he is already suffering from the disease.

THAT FIRST BLOOD AROUSES THE THIRST

Success of the Norman Apple Road
Election in Orange Township Brings Out More Petitions.

JOINING HIGHWAYS PLANNED

Just now the pike microbes are eating on the farmers in Orange township. While other townships have been vying with one another by petitioning for new roads, this township has been comparatively free from the mania. But the success of the Norman Apple petition for a new road at the election last Saturday has stirred the farmers of the township to renewed endeavors.

Just now two petitions for two roads are being circulated by John Wagoner and William Redenbough. The petitions request the building of two different highways under the three-mile road law. They are so situated as to connect with the Apple road. Petitions for other roads are being prepared.

The Norman Apple road was carried at the election by a majority of seventy, fifty-six in one precinct and fourteen in another. The road is eleven miles in length, and makes almost a circuit around the township. It begins within a mile of the line dividing Anderson and Orange townships and runs through Moscow and Gowdy.

SAYS ARRESTS ARE TO BE MADE SOON

Lewisville Druggist Declares Some Person in Boarding House is Responsible For Robbery.

BLOODHOUNDS TRACE THIEF

The Dayton bloodhounds, which were taken to Lewisville to work on the robbery of the Wills drug store, made three trips from the scene of the robbery to a boarding house on the National road Monday afternoon. After the third trip the occupants of the boarding house were lined up and searched, but no money or incriminating evidence was found on them.

Wills insists that persons other than the occupants of the house are responsible for the robbery. He insists that he knows who was responsible for the opening of his safe and says that arrests will soon be made.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Melvin Cox and Lucinda Couch were granted a marriage license yesterday afternoon and were married in the clerk's office by Squire Kratzer. William Garner and Mary Hazel Richey were married this afternoon in the clerk's office by the Rev. W. H. Wylie.

THAT METEOR WAS VAGRANT

Every Correspondent Wrote That It Exploded in Vicinity of His Town.

UBIQUITOUS TO SAY THE LEAST

"Night Owls" Down Jeffersonville Way Searched Ohio River For Particles of It.

The meteor that flashed across the sky and exploded with a thunder-like roar in southern and eastern Indiana Monday night seems to have been a very ubiquitous vagrant. Dispatches from twenty-five towns and cities say the meteor exploded and disappeared near each place reported by the correspondent.

Down at Jeffersonville people are searching the bed of the river for fragments of the meteor which, according to several "night owls" burst directly over the water.

Anderson, more than one hundred miles north of Jeffersonville, reports that John Biddle, a farmer six miles south of Anderson, went on a meteor hunt on his farm Tuesday afternoon and was rewarded, he said, by finding imbedded about three feet in one of his fields, a stone and ironlike mass of about the size of a washtub, which he thinks was the meteor that shot across the southern horizon Monday night and seemed to drop on the Biddle farm.

The Columbus correspondent, midway between Jeffersonville and Anderson, says: "At Grammar, a small town in Bartholomew county, residents heard the rushing noise made by the heavenly body and declare the noise of the explosion was deafening. They say the meteor sunk in a field near Grammar. C. E. Rogers, manager of a local theater, was driving west of this city and he saw the meteor drop in a field about a quarter of a mile from him. Joseph Houk, deputy county clerk, was returning home from a fishing camp and says he saw the meteor fall in a field, not more than a hundred yards from him."

Connersville people also saw the meteor burst near that city which is about fifty miles from Columbus, Anderson and Indianapolis. The Fayette county correspondent says:

"The object resembled an enormous sky rocket, and the similitude was heightened when it burst, about a minute after its first appearance, and fell in a broken shower of light. Two minutes later a deep, sullen boom floated out of the southeast, shaking solid buildings and bringing scores of people from their beds in terror. Many thought an earthquake was happening. One man living in Maplewood, went to the telephone and summoned the police, saying someone was stoning his house. The rattling of the windows had deceived him. The sky was quite cloudless when the phenomenon appeared. It far outshone the electric lights."

Milton, Bentonville and other towns near Connersville tell of the skyrocket appearance of the meteor. People in Scott, Jefferson, Decatur, Jennings, Washington, Wayne, Rush, Jackson, Shelby, Henry, Union, Franklin and Delaware counties are also firmly convinced the meteor burst near where they live.

JUST IMPENDING.

Connersville News: James E. Watson's suggestion that a Mark Hanna is needed may be timely but conditions are not the same now as in 1896. Then four years of Democratic government had devastated the country. Now such a calamity is only threatened.

LAWS TO PREVENT JULY TRAGEDIES

Statutes Are Always Discussed After Usual Fourth Accidents But Are Never Passed.

OTHER CITIES PROHIBIT IT

Stringent Laws Would Spoil Fun But Would Save Eyes, Limbs and Lives.

The consequences of the Fourth of July celebration in the United States in general are shown by the reports to have been much less serious than on previous years. The reason is generally recognized as lying in the fact that innumerable cities and towns in all parts of the country have made it absolutely unlawful to indulge in fireworks of any kind, and have them enforced such law.

In Rushville the results were at least as bad as usual. How serious they were cannot be fully known for several days, during which half a dozen cases of blood poisoning or tetanus may develop from little gunpowder burns received in the celebration of the Fourth.

It is believed by those who have studied the situation that the only possible way to prevent this annual killing and maiming of children is to absolutely prohibit the use of explosives on that day. After each Fourth there is a more or less earnest public cry here for such a law. Then, in a few weeks, the popular feeling against this senseless day of noise and slaughter dies down, in the pressure of other affairs, and is thought of little more until the next yearly batch of crippled patients recalls it.

Whether or not, before the Fourth of July 1913 arrives, this city will have an ordinance, absolutely prohibiting the firing of a shooting cracker, the sending up of a sky rocket or the discharge of any firearms on Independence Day remains to be seen.

Such an arrangement would undoubtedly bar the boys of the city from some delightful fun. It is sure, also, that it would save them some fingers, eyes, limbs of pain, and perhaps lives. Meantime it is not seriously thought that the cause of nationalism would suffer by the restriction. The question is believed to be merely that of a relative value of a few hours of fun, and eyes, limbs and lives.

HAY FEVER ILLS QUICKLY RELIEVED

With a Cleansing, Healing Antiseptic Cream, Stops Sneezing Instantly.

Many people suppose there is no cure for Hay Fever, and think, once one has had an attack, they must suffer every summer from haying time until frost comes. Some of the more fortunate seek relief in cooler climate, but thousands suffer at home, and often make their condition worse by using strong snuffs, powders and sprays.

There is no need of your being a victim of this disease any longer, and you don't have to run away to escape it either. Just get a fifty cent bottle of Ely's Cream Balm, place a little in the nostrils, draw the pleasant, aromatic fumes back into the head, and see how quickly you will get relief.

It opens up the air passages almost instantly, stops the sneezing, running at the nose and weeping. Furthermore, it doesn't simply give you temporary relief, but it heals and strengthens the sensitive membrane lining of the nose and throat, and restores it to normal, healthy condition, thus protecting you against a return of the trouble.

All druggists sell and recommend it. Get a bottle today. If you are not satisfied after fair trial, your druggist will give you back every cent you paid for it.

Healthy people are usually the happiest—and happy people usually healthy. The moral is significant.

Best by Test—FAIR PROMISE

JAMES B. REYNOLDS

Newly Selected Secretary of the Republican National Committee.

TAGGART BURNED THE COMMITTEE'S BOOKS

Not Worth While to Keep "Dead Matter."

Washington, July 10.—When asked by the senate campaign expenditure committee whether he ever figured up the receipts and expenditures of his committee during the Parker campaign, Thomas Taggart, chairman of the Democratic national committee in 1904, replied: "When we got through it was not worth while."

"The court will take judicial notice of that," retorted Chairman Clapp. Mr. Taggart swore that while the treasurer's books came into his possession just before the Denver convention in 1908, he burned them and "other dead matter" before turning over organization records to Norman E. Mack, the new chairman, in 1908.

Mr. Taggart was unable to remember much about contributions. From hearsay he expressed a belief that August Belmont, Thomas F. Ryan and Cord Meyer, all of New York, had contributed.

"These probably were three among thousands, but I just do not remember the others," said Mr. Taggart.

"I suppose you were a contributor?" suggested Senator Oliver.

"I expect I was. Whatever it was, I contributed to the Indiana state committee."

"How much did you contribute?"

"I cannot recall definitely."

"Well, approximately."

"I suppose I would be safe in saying $1,000."

ROLLING IN WEALTH

Order of Elks the Richest of All American Secret Societies.

Portland, Ore., July 10.—According to the annual report of the grand secretary of the Benevolent Order of Elks, now in national session here, the total value of property owned by the subordinate lodges at the close of the fiscal year March 31, was $20,391,322.45, which, according to the report, makes the order the wealthiest in America. The total membership in the order is 384,724, a net increase of 25,065 in the last year.

Thomas B. Mills of Superior, Wis., was elected grand exalted ruler by acclamation. Dr. C. H. Ward of Pasadena, Cal., was elected grand loyal knight, and Edward Leach of New York was re-elected treasurer.

Prohs Gather at Atlantic City. Atlantic City, July 10.—On the eve of the national prohibition convention Eugene Chapin of Illinois for president and Aaron Watkins of Ohio for vice president are the candidates looking large. There are a bunch of states to hear from, but these two seem to have the call just now.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

In connection with earthquake shocks felt throughout Alaska, Mt. Katmai again is erupting.

No more cases of the bubonic plague have been discovered at Havana, but a few suspicious cases are under observation.

The French seamen's strike practically has come to an end, the Havre local union having decided to call the strike off.

A double explosion in the Cadeby colliery in the Yorkshire district caused the death of seventy-five English miners.

Fire which did damage of over half a million dollars swept through Thousand Island park, destroying the chief hotels and burning over 100 cottages.

The Pennsylvania state convention of the Prohibition party nominated a complete state ticket and endorsed Charles L. Hawley of Pittsburgh for the presidency.

There have been serious anti-Jewish disorders at Sdnaska, Russian Poland. All Jews found in the streets were attacked and the windows of houses owned by Jews were smashed.

STATE BOARDS TO FIGHT EVIL

War Begun On Illegal Sale of Pernicious Drugs.

ONE DRUGGIST IN TROUBLE

Indiana State Medical Board Today Is Hearing Charges Against a Fort Wayne Physician and Druggist Who Is Accused of Selling Cocaine to Minors—State Board of Pharmacy Also Active.

Indianapolis, July 10.—Members of the state board of pharmacy and the state board of medical examination and registration have signified their willingness to start a combined campaign against druggists and physicians of the state who contribute to the use of cocaine, morphine, etc., through illicit circulation of the drugs. The medical board today began the hearing of charges against Henry W. Niswonger of Fort Wayne, a physician and druggist, who is charged with selling cocaine to minors. The board, if the charges are sustained, will revoke Niswonger's license as a physician.

Members of the pharmacy board said the only way they could get at the druggist who illegally sells the drugs would be to assail his license on the ground of gross immorality. Prosecution for selling the drug, they said, lay with the prosecuting attorneys in the judicial districts.

TAGGART'S SUCCESSOR

Will Be Selected at Meeting of State Committee This Week.

Indianapolis, July 10.—At a meeting in this city on Friday of this week a successor to Thomas Taggart as Democratic national committeeman from Indiana will be chosen by the Democratic state committee. Bernard Korbly, state chairman, has sent out a call for the meeting. Mr. Taggart is expected to arrive here tomorrow, and he probably will be asked to attend the meeting.

State Chairman Korbly says it is his understanding that it is the duty of the state committee to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Taggart. At first there appeared to be some doubt as to whether the authority to appoint the successor rested with the national committee or the state committee, but Korbly says he has learned that it is up to the state organization. This view of the matter is based largely on the fact that a resolution was adopted at the Denver national convention four years ago placing such power in the hands of the committee of a state and taking it from the national committee. Two names suggested for successor to Taggart are those of W. H. O'Brien, auditor of state, and Congressman Lincoln Dixon.

Two Boys and a Gun.

Clinton, Ind., July 10.—Not knowing a rifle was loaded, Simeon Short, about eighteen years old, pointed the weapon at Russell Walker, about his own age, as the two started hunting. Short pulled the trigger and his companion threw up his arms and fell. The bullet passed through the young man's chest and his condition is serious.

Didn't Know It Was Loaded.

Bloomington, Ind., July 10.—Edward Smiley, twelve years old, playfully pointed a repeating rifle at his sister, Mrs. Charles Eads. The boy pulled the trigger and his sister dropped dead, the bullet piercing her right breast. The boy said he did not know the gun was loaded.

Widow Blames Mine Boss.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 10.—Suit has been filed by Mrs. Lucretia Donham against the Pittsburg Mining company for $10,000 damages, alleging that her husband was killed because he complied with an order of the mine boss to place timbers in a dangerous place in the mine.

A Boy and a Gun.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 10.—Mrs. Dennis Tuttle was shot in the temple by George Moss, four years old. She is in a serious condition. The child was handling a rifle at a camp where several families are spending the summer.

Charged With Manslaughter.

Muncie, Ind., July 10.—Jesse Street, aged twenty-seven, was almost instantly killed when he was struck by a motorcycle ridden by George Kamphausen of Mt. Healthy, O. Kamphausen is in jail on a charge of manslaughter.

Caught by Freight Train.

Noblesville, Ind., July 10.—William Edwards, night watchman at Cicero, was instantly killed by a Panhandle freight train. It is thought he was watching for thieves when the train struck him.

Yeggs Crack a Safe.

Lewisville, Ind., July 10.—Burglars obtained $75 from the safe in L. L. Willis's drug store here. They used a sledge hammer to break the door of the safe.

Lightning struck the roof of the Indiana state capitol, doing damage to the extent of several hundred dollars.

MR. WILSON IS GOING TO RUN IT

Democratic Campaign in the Nominee's Hands.

PUT A FLEA IN MR. MACK'S EAR

Old Chairman Had a Little Plan Which He Thought Would Be Just the Thing to Get the Campaign Rolling Along All Nice and Smooth, but Mr. Wilson, It Seems, Had a Wholly Different Line of Thought.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 10.—That this is to be a progressive Democratic campaign, with no frills, and a man named Woodrow Wilson is going to run it, is known now by old-time members of the Democratic national committee and some of their friends whom William J. Bryan may have hinted at. The ultimatum to this effect was conveyed by telegraph and other means by Norman E. Mack, present national chairman, who paid a visit to Sea Girt for an hour's close conference with the Democratic presidential nominee. Whether this had anything to do with Tom Taggart's resignation is not known. The governor, who is here today, said Taggart's resignation "came out of a clear sky."

Mr. Mack, a veteran member of the national committee, went down to see Governor Wilson with a simple little proposition which would remove all the present embarrassment due to the necessity of choosing a head of the national committee. Mr. Mack suggested that the governor have his pre-nomination manager, William F. McCombs, made national chairman at Chicago next Monday, but that just to help Mr. McCombs out the national committee be allowed to select a campaign committee headed by some experienced practical politician and filled with valiant Democrats, said campaign committee to work in harmony with the national chairman, of course, in a brotherly, hand-in-hand way. This would remove all the sting in the committee because an outsider was chosen as its presiding officer and the great cause would go sweeping on to victory. All of which suggestion or proposal by Mr. Mack received the speedy and emphatic veto of Woodrow Wilson, Democratic nominee. The veto was the refusal of the governor at that time to agree to the proposal without consulting with friends, all of which is to be supplemented by a positive refusal of the governor or any of his advisers to do anything of the sort.

There was only a whisper of this in Sea Girt before the governor left for Trenton, and at Trenton, around state Democratic headquarters, there was more talk. Word comes to Atlantic City today that when the governor returns to Sea Girt this evening, he will be handed a basketful of telegrams from his supporters and from progressives all over the country counselling him to have nothing whatever to do with the ideas and suggestions that may be made to him between now and next Monday for a compromise which would lessen his power at any time during the campaign. The charge has been made that Mr. Mack has not been acting wholly for himself in making his proposal, but that certain men in New York may have been behind it.

Governor Wilson's position is well understood in the committee. He will run the campaign through Mr. McCombs, presumably, or the man who is selected. A man like W. G. McAdoo will be treasurer and the contributions will all come from one source. The governor himself acting with Mr. McAdoo may even exercise a censorship over the contributions, and if any soiled or tainted money comes rolling in it will be rolled right back.

IN READINESS

West Virginia National Guard Prepared to March on Paint Creek.

Charleston, W. Va., July 10.—As the result of wild rioting among the striking coal miners in the Paint Creek field, orders have been issued to the two regiments of the national guard to hold themselves in readiness for field service. It is known that the miners received 400 additional rifles, mostly Winchester, the latter part of last week. The adjutant general's office has everything in readiness to ship the troops to the scene at a moment's notice.

The miners have been on a strike since April, and it has been only a few weeks since coal detectives and miners engaged in a pitched battle in which several were wounded. The latest outbreak came when several hundred armed miners scattered along the hillside at Mucklow and opened fire on the homes of non-union men. None of the occupants was injured. Several hundred shots were fired and some of the houses were fairly riddled.

Another Portuguese Outbreak.

Lisbon, July 10.—Revolutionary outbreaks have been reported in Cabeciras de Basto, where the manager and secretary of the treasury office were killed. Advices received from the frontier say that the Portuguese royalists lost fifty killed and 200 wounded in a battle at Chaves. The republican losses are not given.

BARTOW S. WEEKS.

Chairman American Olympic Committee and All Round Sportsman.

Stockholm, July 10.—To date in the Olympic contests America has scored twenty-five points, and all other countries twenty-eight. Little Finland is firmly planted in second place, with twelve points, and next to the whole-sale victories of the United States, the performances of the athletes of the Russian dependency is the wonder of the experts of international athletics.

EXCLUSION OF JEWS IS URGED IN RUSSIA

Electoral Manifesto Designed to Cause Trouble.

St. Petersburg, July 10.—An electoral manifesto has been issued by the monarchist union of Archangel Michael, of which M. Purishkevitch, the leader of the extreme right in the duma, is president, insisting on the necessity of "eradicating the Jewish excrement which has become deeply incrustated on the body of the Russian people." The manifesto demands the exclusion of all Jews from all civil and military employment by the state in order "that they shall not have an opportunity of demoralizing, poisoning and oppressing the people pending their total expulsion from Russia."

The manifesto urges that there should be no Jewish judges, advocates or jurymen, and insists that Jewish doctors should not be allowed to attend Christians and no Jews should be permitted to become chemists. It also taxes the government with being in bonds to false liberal doctrines and with holding aloof from the struggle against "the terrible force of Jewry," owing to the constant necessity of obtaining funds.

The circular concludes: "The nationalization of Russian credit would be the most effective means of destroying the present evil, for once the Jews are debarred from the practice of usury they would leave Russia of their own accord."

Will Vote on It Tomorrow.

Washington, July 10.—A vote on the Clayton report recommending the impeachment of Judge Robert W. Archbald of the commerce court will be taken in the house tomorrow. Counsel for Judge Archbald has given out a statement asserting that all the principal charges made against the judge were completely disproved by evidence placed before the house committee.

PERCENTAGE TO THE GOOD

Statement, However, Not Altogether Reassuring to the Owner of a Heavy Car.

The lightning was flashing and the thunder was crashing, and along with them were rain, hail, and a wind that threatened fairly to blow off the top of the universe. Hackley urged the car forward at a terrific pace, seeking shelter, and at last, as he rounded a turn in the road the welcome sign, Garage, was to be seen a hundred yards ahead. He stopped in front of it, and the long, lean countryman in charge swung open the doors.

"Gee!" said Hackley, dubiously, as he looked inside and took in the sad fact that this, like many other so-called garages, was nothing but an old-time barn, transformed into its present glory by a coat of paint and a swinging sign. "How about that floor of yours, mister?"

"It's a darned good floor," replied the owner, chewing on a wisp of straw.

"No doubt," said Hackley, "but is it safe?"

"I reckon it is," said the proprietor, glancing proudly within. "I've had thirteen automobiles in here 'tready this season, and no more'n six on 'em's fell threw."—Harper's Weekly.

SCHOOLHOUSE UNATTRACTIVE

Educators Declare Two Thirds of 12-000,000 in Rural Schools Fail to Reach Standard.

CAUSE FOR TREND TO CITY

Condition Described as a Menace to Educational Progress—Investigation May be Made.

The little red schoolhouse is so "unattractive" that "more than two-thirds of the 12,000,000 pupils in the rural public schools fail to reach a high standard in their studies."

That condition was described as a menace to educational progress and as one of the reasons why the country child looks longingly toward the city, in a report submitted before the National Council of Education. The council met preliminary to the opening of the fiftieth annual convention of the National Education Association in Chicago this week.

The conditions surrounding the traditional "little red schoolhouse" were described as so deplorable that the council considered a plan in to have the national association employ an expert to investigate and report on rural districts.

E. T. Fairchild, state superintendent of public instruction, Topeka, Kas., and James Y. Joyner, Raleigh, N. C., declared that "the country child is the neglected child and the country schoolhouse is a neglected schoolhouse."

They said the importance of rural education was shown in fact that of the 20,000,000 school children in the United States, 12,000,000 attended country schools, yet less than one-third of the rural pupils were able to meet their grades.

"There must be a revival interest in the country school if the education of the country is to progress," said Mr. Joyner. "We must cease centering all our attention on the city school. There must be aroused in the schoolhouse in the desert, on the mountain or on the farm a love of rural life and not a hatred of it. Neglect our rural schools and they will be deserted; make them attractive and comfortable and education will flourish."

The teaching of scientific farming and fruit growing with special reference to local condition was recommended as an incentive to renewed interest in rural education.

A. J. Mathews, president of the State Normal School, Tempe, Ariz., said he believed Arizona had solved the rural school problem by a law which allows any rural school with eight pupils or more to draw on the state for $4,000 annually. He said the state provided $1,000,000 for education and adequate payment for good teachers was one means of attaining success.

"Too many pupils are being turned out of the public schools without any knowledge of how they are going to make a living," was the substance of a report submitted by J. A. Shawan, superintendent of schools at Columbus, O.

Has Nursed for 45 Years.

In connection with the death of Lord Lister it is interesting to know that the nurse who assisted the famous surgeon with his first antiseptic preparations is still in the Glasgow Royal Infirmary. Nurse Bell has many interesting stories of the old days when Professor Lister was in the infirmary, and the crowd of students and dressers, many of them now chiefs, who attended the classes from 1861 to 1869.

Nurse Bell has been in the Royal infirmary for 45 years. She is now sixty-nine years of age and she enjoys good health, though not able to do much. When Lord Lister was presented with the freedom of the city of Glasgow four years ago it was his desire that Nurse Bell should be present at the function in St. Andrews' hall. When the memorial service was held in the university chapel she had a special invitation to be present—Nursing News.

Life insurance companies wouldn't do much business if they limited policies to the value of the insured in the same proportion as fire insurance companies.

LET US SHOW YOU NO-RIM-CUT TIRES

You are undoubtedly convinced that you should use No-Rim-Cut tires.
Every motorist has read about No-Rim-Cut tires again and again in the magazines and newspapers. You have read how the No-Rim-Cut tire cuts out the rim channel. A hooked base is not necessary to hold the No-Rim-Cut tire on. The hooked side of the rings are turned away from the tire. When the tire is deflated, rests on the rounded side of the rings. Rim-Cutting is impossible.

NO-RIM-CUT FEATURE

No-Rim-Cut tires have six tapes of 126 braided wires in the base, making the base absolutely unstretchable.
Nothing can force the tire out of the rim channel. That oversize means 10 per cent more air—10 per cent more carrying capacity. That oversize saves all that overloading costs.

Consider these features and what they save the motorists.

No-Rim-Cut tires cost no more than standard clincher tires. Why shouldn't you adopt No-Rim-Cut tires

NEW STYLE OF MILK BOTTLE

Has Small Opening at About Spot Where Bottom of Cream Line is Quite Apt to Be.

Various devices have been invented to get the cream out of a milk bottle and a Michigan man has contrived a way that involves a new bottle. In this new bottle there is a small opening at about the spot where the bot-

New Style Milk Bottle.

tom cream line is apt to be. Normally this opening is plugged with a removable pin, but when the cream is to be run off this pin is taken out and the cream allowed to flow through the hole. To do this, however, air must be admitted to the top of the bottle, so the plug is made with a sharp point which can be jabbed through the pasteboard seal that is in the top. It is important to keep each plug with its particular bottle, for once the plug is lost the bottle is of no use until another stopper can be found for it.

PREVENTION OF ROPY MILK

Caused by Certain Bacteria, One Type of Which is Found in Dirty, Stagnant Water.

A woman reader wishes help regarding ropy milk, asking the cause and the cure. The milk is strained at night and the next morning the cream is ropy and must be thrown away. It is not always easy to trace the cause of ropy milk to its source. Without going into any lengthy explanation, it may be said that ropy or almy milk is caused by certain bacteria. One type may be found in dirty, stagnant water.
If the cows wade in this water their flanks and udders become the resting place for this type. The bacteria are easily transferred to the milk at milking time. The stable becomes infected, as it were, and also the utensils that come in contact with the milk. The germs lodge in the crevices of the utensils and readily propagate in the warm milk. The cure lies in absolute cleanliness. All utensils should be thoroughly scalded. Lime is an excellent destroyer of all germ life. The utensils may be given a coating of the slaked lime, then washed in boiling water. It may be necessary to give the stable a thorough cleaning with lime used as whitewash.

HANDY DEVICE IN THE BARN

Lever Attached to End Used for Opening and Closing Stanchions—
How It is Made.

I have a handy device for opening and closing stanchions, says a writer in the Missouri Valley Farmer. When making it I took first a strip of one by four and bored one-half inch holes in it. These holes were as far apart as the stanchions were at the top.

The Lever Does It.

Then I bored holes the same size near the bottom of the swinging side of the stanchion. I bolted the strip to the stanchions, and at the end attached a lever by which the stanchions could easily be closed. The lock on the end of the stanchion is the only one now that need be closed, as the strip keeps all the others closed.

Effect of Feed on Milk.

Some dairymen believe that if the feed of their cows is changed it will have a bad effect upon the milk flow, but repeated scientific experiments show that changing from one feed to another, and frequently additions to the regular feed, helps the milk flow.

Money in Dairyming.

There is money in dairyming in spite of a prevalent notion to the contrary, but it needs a combination of good cows and good management to get it out.

November and July.

"Wall street bets 3 to 2 that Wilson will beat Taft." "Bets are offered in New York without any takers, that Wilson will have a two-thirds majority in the electoral college." These chirps over the wire have a familiar sound. With a change of names the country heard similar outbursts before. After Greeley was endorsed by the Democrats in the Baltimore convention in 1872 the betting men in New York offered odds on his election. In the summer of 1876 Tilden "swept" the country. Ten days before the election of 1896 Henry George, who had been accompanying the candidate on some of his trips, predicted that Bryan would carry every State except possibly four or five.

Generally the Democratic candidate is much stronger in midsummer than he is two or three months later. He gets elected every day except on election day. Therefore, those who recall the instances in which the betting men were wrong in the campaigns of the past will smile at the confidence or pretended confidence, with which they are making forecasts for Wilson now. Neither Wilson nor his creator, Bryan, is showing and especial exuberance over the outlook.

From experience Bryan remembers the delusive character of the whoops which come immediately after the convention. Bryan, indeed, had good reason to feel rather confident in 1896. He attracted larger crowds than had gathered to greet any other candidate since the civil war. No such audiences can be won by Wilson. He lacks the magnetism, as well as the eloquence of Bryan. The sincerity of his recent conversion to radicalism is not likely to impress the radicals, while it will arouse distrust among the conservative section of the Democrats.

"I lost the nomination solely through the vile and malicious slanders of William Jennings Bryan," exclaims Speaker Clark. While Clark says he will support Wilson, does anybody suppose that he will work with any heartiness for him? Henry Watterson regrets the choice of a candidate, but says he will work for the platform, thus reversing the sentiment of his old friend, Greeley, just after Scott was nominated by the Whigs after an obnoxious concession to slavery. "I will support the ticket," exclaimed Greeley, "but I spit upon the platform."

The pretense of harmony among the Democrats in favor of the New Jersey pedagogue is rather hollow. Wilson has a hard fight ahead of him, with a normal Republican lead of 1,000,000 votes to overcome if he is to win. Can Wilson get 500,000 more votes than his sponsor Bryan, obtained when he rolled up his big total of 6,500,000 which is the high-water mark of Democratic strength? Probably not. Every Republican presidential candidate in the past four campaigns left the 7,000,000 mark behind.

A Question.

Washington Herald: A friend of the Herald asks us the following question:

"Will the farmers of the country support Taft for President?"

Without a moment for consideration we answered, Yes!

Our friend evidently is inspired to ask this question because of the President's stand for Canadian reciprocity, and it is upon that theory that we make our answer.

If the farmers are opposed to the free exchange policy with Canada they will oppose the free exchange idea promulgated by the Baltimore convention. The bringing into the American markets of Canadian products would not have the result on prices that the bringing to our shores of the product of the farms of South America and Australia, where labor can be secured for a few pennies a day.

Our correspondent should have no fear. The farmers have had their eye-teeth cut on this tariff-for-revenue-only mush. They remember the time when the protective bars were thrown down by Mr. Cleveland and at the same time the price of corn dropped to about fifteen cents. They know their conditions of today and will take no chance on four years of hardships. Since the day when the American voters called on William McKinley to re-establish the tariff duties and kill for the time the Bryan free silver craze, they have been busy in paying off their mortgages, and investing their surplus in automobiles, splendid urban homes and the like.

Do they want a change? Certainly not. This progressive talk will pass the farmer after the fashion of rain dripping from a duck's back.

Business Waiting.

All productive conditions in the United States are so favorable that the business world is ready for expanded enterprises as soon as politics takes a more settled shape. The pre-convention period has been more turbulent than the average closing months of a national campaign, and it is hoped that the situation will soon be substantially quieted. No exciting paramount issue, like free silver, is before the country. There will be a contest over protection as opposed to free trade, but that will be nothing new.

The question of "progressiveness" is one of the generalities hard to define. Nobody worth considering is opposed to progress of the right kind but deciding on the kind depends on the point of view. Progressiveness has been the rule in this country, and it will go on steadily if designing politicians are kept from meddling with it in pursuit of their own advantage.

One of the best signs of campaign improvement is the lessening furor over mere personalities. Another welcome fact is that one of the tickets in the field represents accomplished results and a tested basis of prosperity. This ticket is a known quantity. No one need vote for the experimental. The privilege of letting well alone is open. There is no forced choice of hard, uncertain alternatives. The good that is in sight and in hand can be continued at least four years longer, and with this assured the most energetic class in commerce and industry could push forward with confidence and widespread support. The jury is composed of 15,000,000 voters. Scarcely a fifth of them have spoken as yet. The great body of citizens is not running wild nor likely to act in impulsive haste.

Swat the Weed.

While Rushville is swatting the fly a thought now and then might be given to the pesky weed.

A recent government bulletin, directed particularly to farmers, calls attention to the tremendous waste occasioned by parasite weeds. They crowd and choke legitimate crops, rob the soil of sustenance which belongs to grain, vegetables and fruits, and, maturing, tax the farmers thousands a year for freightage to market.

Like a house fly, a weed is so easy to kill that few take the trouble to kill it. Flies and weeds thrive through the carelessness of their natural enemies. Both could be exterminated in a very few years if people would only take the trouble to wage war on them.

Flies are no longer having the care-free existence which once was their lots. Weeds may some day come into as bad repute. Neither has an excuse for existence and wider publicity of their evil propensities will eventually accomplish their expiration.

Swat flies for health's sake. Kill weeds for the pocketbook's sake. Incidentally, both health and politics would profit by their joint destruction.

There is a widespread impression that the Republican convention of 1880, which on the thirty-sixth ballot, gave James A. Garfield 399 votes and the nomination, was the longest drawn out of any in the history of American political parties. This is an error. The convention which met at Charleston on the 23d of April, 1860, with full delegations from every State in the Union, took fifty-seven ballots without reaching a decision, owing to the two-thirds vote. Many delegates having seceded and held another convention in the same city, which later adjourned to Richmond, Va., the regular Democrats themselves adjourned to meet again at Baltimore. There on June 18, they reassembled, and on the first ballot gave Stephen A. Douglas of Illinois, the nomination. Fifty-seven, not thirty-six ballots is the record.

The government is investigating the hard lot of the natives who collect rubber, but it is neglecting the sufferings of the motorists who have to pay for it in their tires.

It is too bad that the hobo convention at New York proved a fizzle. It had been hoped that some needed lessons of dignity and order would be taught to our political conventions.

There is trouble in the treasury department, and as the money is still there, our officials do not seem to be familiar with the customary method of settling such differences.

The British Court of Inquiry lets Mr. Ismay down very easy, but for some unknown reason they omitted to suggest that his statue be placed in the Hall of Fame.

Now the battleship New Hampshire has been rammed by a passenger steamer. Strange that our defenceless warships won't learn to keep out of harm's way.

If the schoolmaster is elected President, perhaps he will be willing to help out in the District of Columbia night schools without charging extra pay.

From the way things are going down at the Olympic games Uncle Sam might well give John Bull down to second base as a starter.

Under present conditions, it does not look as if Gov. Wilson would have to spend much time after supper mowing his front lawn.

Gov. Marshall chews tobacco, but if he should be elected vice president few people would deny him this little consolation.

Alas for the passing of the civil war days, the colonels and majors must now give way to the professors.

The efforts to produce peace in politics are principally successful in creating pieces.

People's Column.

Editor Republican:

Having been a resident of Rush county for almost a quarter of a century but for the past twenty-six years a resident of Hancock county and a subscriber and reader of the Republican for many years, I still retain a deep interest in the people of Rush county and what contributes to their welfare.

In reading the news columns of the semi-weekly I notice many discouraging reports of the crops in Rush county, and since my son who has been through the county confirms those reports the outlook must be discouraging to many of the Rush county farmers.

The wheat crop and oats crops are said to be the poorest grown in the county for a number of years while the clover crop which is the mainstay of the farmers has been ruined or greatly damaged by the drought that prevailed earlier in the season.

The corn crop, the standard crop of the State is a month late, but has been given thorough cultivation and has time to develop and make a fair to good yield.

While these conditions look bad to Rush county farmers they must remember how they have been favored above other farmers in adjoining counties within the past few years.

While the corn in Hancock county, like Rush, is late, since the recent showers, farmers are hopeful of a good corn crop in most instances. Our wheat, which went into winter quarters looking fine, was greatly damaged by the ice that covered the ground for a month during the winter and only a half crop of that cereal is looked for, while the quality is the best.

Never in the history of Hancock county did she ever have so fine a prospect for oats. The acreage is unusually large. The oats stands thick and tall and I sincerely believe the average yield of oats in the township in which I live will be no less than 50 bushels per acre.

Timothy meadows are fine. Clover meadows are good but infested with white top and weeds. The last spring sowing of clover and timothy are all that could be desired and give promise to the making of fine pastures and meadows another year. Vegetables are fine, especially is this true of potatoes and since the rains the late potato seems assured. Live stock is doing well and will do better since the pastures have been revived by the midsummer rains. Peaches are a failure. Apples that were plentiful last season will only be in moderate supply. Pears and plums will be in ample supply a little later.

I must close. Will write more at another time when I want to speak a few words about the Republican State convention and a word about the Republican candidate who is to be the next governor of Indiana.

"Took a walk," she said, turning to the bed and beginning to rock. "It's a queer sort of hour to choose for walking," and lifting the cane she recommenced her occupation of scratching the foot-board with it, tracing long, parabolic curves across the entire expanse, watching the cane's tip with her head tilted to one side. Dominick, who was not looking at her, did not notice the noise.

"I thought," she said, tracing a great arc from one side to the other, "that you were with your loving family—opening the ball, probably."

He did not move, but said quietly: "It was impossible to get the invitation, Beryl. I tried to do it and was refused. I want you to understand that as long as I live I'll never do a thing like that again."

"Oh, yes, you will," she said laughing and shaking her head like an amused child. "Oh, yes, you will." She threw her head back and, looking at the ceiling, laughed still louder with a note of fierceness in the sound. "You'll do it and lots more things like it. You'll do it if I want you to, Dominick Ryan."

He did not answer. She hitched her chair closer to the bed as if to return to an engrossing pastime, and, leaning back luxuriously, resumed her play with the cane. This time Dominick noticed the noise and turned. She was conscious that he was looking at her, and began to scratch with an appearance of charmed absorption, such as an artist might display in his work. He watched her for a moment in silent astonishment and then broke out sharply:

"What are you doing?"

"Scratching the bed," responded calmly.

"You must be mad," he said, striding angrily toward her and stretching a hand for the cane. "You're ruining it."

She whipped the cane to the other side, out of his reach.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR AT SMALL COST

A Simple Remedy Beautifies the Hair, Cures Dandruff, Stops Falling Hair.

What a pity it is to see so many people with thin, wispy hair, faded or streaked with gray, and realize that most of these people might have soft, glossy, abundant hair of beautiful color and lustre if they would but use the proper treatment. There is no necessity for gray hair under sixty-five years of age, and there is no excuse for anyone, young or old, having thin, straggling hair, either full of dandruff or heavy and rank smelling with excessive oil.

You can bring back the natural color of your hair in a few days and forever rid yourself of any dandruff and loose hairs, and make your hair grow strong and beautiful by using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. For generations common garden Sage has been used for restoring and preserving the color of the hair, and Sulphur is recognized by Scalp Specialists as being excellent for treatment of hair and scalp troubles.

If you are troubled with dandruff or itching scalp, or if your hair is losing its color or coming out, get a fifty cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur from your druggist, and notice the improvement in the appearance of your hair after a few days' treatment. Special Agents, Hargrove & Mullin.

AWAY WITH CATARRH A FILTHY DISEASE

A Simple Remedy Relieves Distressing Symptoms.

If you have any symptoms of catarrh, such as stuffed up feeling in the head, profuse discharge from the nose, phlegm in the throat, causing hawking and spitting, dull pain in the head, or ringing in the ears, just anoint the nostrils or rub the throat or chest with a little Ely's Cream Balm, and see how quickly you will get relief.

In just a few minutes you will feel your head clearing, and after using the Balm for a day or so the nasty discharge will be checked, the pain, soreness and fever will be gone, and you will no longer be offensive to yourself and friends by your constant hawking, spitting and blowing.

Shake off the grip of catarrh before it impairs your sense of taste, smell and hearing and poisons your whole system. In short time you can be cured of this distressing disease by using Ely's Cream Balm. This healing, antiseptic Balm does not fool you with short, deceptive relief, but completely overcomes the disease. It clears the nose, head and throat of all the rank poison, soothes and strengthens the raw, sore membranes, and makes you proof against catarrh.

One application will convince you, and a fifty-cent bottle will generally effect a complete cure. Get it from your druggist and start the treatment at once. Hargrove & Mullin, special agents.

ing back to the bed, "Too bad, isn't it, and the set not paid for yet?"

"Not paid for!" he exclaimed, so amazed by the statement that he forgot everything else. "Why, I've given you the money for it twice!"

"Three times," she amended coolly, "and I spent it on things I liked better. I bought clothes, and jewelry with it, and little fixings I wanted. Yes, the bedroom set isn't all paid for yet and we've had it nearly two years. Who would have thought that the son of Con Ryan couldn't pay his bills!"

She rose, threw the cane into the corner, and, turning toward him, leaned back, half-sitting on the foot-board, her hands, palm downward, pressed on its rounded top.

Dominick and she had had many quarrels, ignominious and repulsive, but he had never before seen her in so savage a mood. Even yet he had not lost the feeling of responsibility and remorse he felt toward her. As he moved from the mantelpiece his eye had fallen on the ball-dress that lay, a sweep of lace and silver, across the bed, and on the bureau he had seen jewels and hair ornaments laid out among the powder boxes and scent bottles. The paths of these futile preparations appealed to him and he made an effort to be patient and just.

"It's been a disappointment," he said, "and I'm sorry about it. But I've done all I could and there's no use doing any more. You've got to give it up. There's no use trying to make my mother give in. She won't."

"Won't she?" she cried, her voice suddenly loud and shaken with rage. "We'll see! We'll see! We'll see if I've married into the Ryan family for nothing."

Her wrath at last loosened, her control was instantly swept away. In a moment she was that appalling sight, a violent and vulgar woman in a raging passion. She ran around the bed and, seizing the dress, threw it on the floor and stamped on it, grinding the delicate fabric into the carpet with her heels.

"There!" she cried. "That's what I feel about it. That's the way I'll treat the things and the people I don't like! That dress—it isn't paid for, but I don't want it. I'll get another when I do. Have I married Con Ryan's son to need money and bother about bills? Not on your life! Did you notice the gas? Every burner turned on. Well, I did it just to have a nice bright house for you when you came home without the invitation. We haven't paid the bill for two months—but what does that matter? We're related to the Ryans. We don't have to trouble about bills."

He saw that she was beyond arguing with and turned to leave the room. She sprang after him and caught him by the arm, pouring out only too coherent streams of rage and abuse. It was the old story of the "wrongs" she had suffered at his hands, and his "rain" of her. To-night it had no power to move him and he shook her off and left the room. She ran to the door behind him and leaning out, cried it after him.

He literally fled from her, down the hallway, with the open doorway sending their lurid light and hissing noise across his passage. As he reached the dining-room he heard her bang the door and with aggressive noise turn the key in the lock and shoot the bolt. Even at that moment the lack of necessity for such a precaution caused a bitter smile to move his lips.

He entered the dining-room and sat down by the table, his head on his hands. He sat thus for some hours, trying to think what he should do. He found it impossible to come to any definite conclusion for the future; all he could decide upon now was the necessity of leaving his wife, getting a respite from her, withdrawing himself from the sight of her. He had never loved her, but to-night the pity and responsibility he had felt seemed to be torn from his life as a morning wind tears a cobweb from the grass.

The dawn was whitening the window-panes when he finally got pen and paper and wrote a few lines. These, without prefix or signature, stated that he would leave the city for a short time and not to make any effort to find where he had gone or communicate with him. He wrote her name on the folded paper and placed it in front of the clock. Then he stole into his bedroom—they had occupied separate rooms for over six months—and packed a valise with his oldest and roughest clothes. After this he waited in the dining-room till the light was bright and the traffic of the day loud on the pavement, before he crept down the long stairway and went out into the crystal freshness of the morning.

CHAPTER IV.

Out of Night and Storm.

When Rose Cannon woke on the morning after her arrival at Antelope, a memory of the snowflakes of the evening before made her jump out of bed and patter barefooted to the window. It seemed to her it would be "lots of fun" to be snowed up at Antelope, and when she saw only a thin covering of white on the hotel garden and the diminishing perspective of roofs, she drew her mouth into a grimace of disappointment.

With hunched-up shoulders, her hands tucked under her arms, she stood looking out, her breath blurring the pane in a dissolving film of smoke. It was a cold little world. Below her the garden—the summer pride of Perley's Hotel—lay a sere, withered waste, its shrubs stiff in the grip of the cold. The powdering of snow on its frost-bitten leaves and grizzled grass added to its air of bleakness. Beyond rose the shingled roofs of Antelope's main street. Rose, standing gazing up, wondered if her father would go on to Greenhide, the new camp twenty miles from Antelope, where an important strike had recently been made.

Half an hour later when they met at breakfast he told her he would not leave for Greenhide that morning. Perley had warned him not to attempt it, and he for his part knew the country well enough to realize that it would be foolhardy to start under such a threatening sky. It would be all right to stop over at Antelope till the weather made up its mind what it meant to do. It might not be fun for her, but then he had warned her before they left San Francisco that she would have to put up with rough accommodations and unaccustomed discomforts.

Rose laughed. Her father did not understand that the roughness and novelty of it all was what she enjoyed. He was already a man of means when she was born, and she had known nothing of the hardships and privations through which he and her mother had struggled up to fortune. Rocky Bar the night before and Antelope this morning were her first glimpses of the mining region over which the pioneers had swarmed in '49. Bill Cannon, only a lad in his teens among them.

Perley's warnings of bad weather were soon verified. Early in the afternoon the idle, occasional snowflakes had begun to fall thickly, with a soft, persistent steadiness of purpose.

At four o'clock, Willoughby, the Englishman who had charge of the shut-down Bella K. mine, came, butting head down against the wind, a

ACT QUICKLY

Delay Has Been Dangerous in Rushville.

Do the right thing at the right time. Act quickly in time of danger.

Backache is kidney danger. Doan's Kidney Pills act quickly. Plenty of evidence to prove this.

Harrison Levi, 931 North Sexton street, Rushville, Ind., says: "I have nothing but praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, for they have been of great benefit to me. I was subject to attacks of kidney trouble and no doubt the complaint was brought on by the hardships I endured while in the war. I had severe pains in my back and the kidney secretions were irregular in passage. This weakness disturbed my rest and I knew that something must be done. Three years ago Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention and procuring a box at F. B. Johnson & Co.'s Drug Store I began their use. In a short time the backache and kidney weakness disappeared and I was in much better health. I cannot say that I am completely cured, but I know that I can rely on Doan's Kidney Pills for relief. I have previously given a public statement in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills and I gladly endorse them again."

group of dogs at his heels, to claim the hospitality of the hotel. His watchman, an old timer, had advised him to seek a shelter better stored with provisions than the office building of the Bella K. Willoughby, whose accent and manner had proclaimed him as one of high distinction before it was known in Antelope that he was "some relation to a lord," was made welcome in the bar. His four red setter dogs, shut out from that hospitable retreat by the swing door, grouped around it and stared expectantly, each shout from within being answered by them with plaintive and ingratiating whines.

The afternoon was still young when the day began to darken. Rose Cannon, who had been sitting in the parlor, dreaming over a fire of logs, went to the window, wondering at the growing gloom. The wind had risen to a wild, sweeping speed, that tore the snow fine as mist. There were no lazy, woolly flakes now. They had turned into an opaque, slanting veil which here and there curled into snowy mounds and in other places left the ground bare.

Rose looked out on it with an interest that was a little soberer than the debonaire blitheness of her morning mood. If it kept up they might be snowed in for days, Perley had said. That being the case, this room, the hotel's one parlor, would be her retreat, her abiding place—for her bedroom was as cold as an ice-chest—until they were liberated. With the light, half-whimsical smile that came so readily to her lips, she turned from the window and surveyed it judiciously.

She was leaving the window to return to her seat by the fire when the complete silence that seemed to hold the outside world in a spell was broken by sudden sounds. Voices, the crack of a whip, then a grudging thump against the hotel porch, caught her ear and whirled her back to the pane. A large covered vehicle, with the whitened shapes of a smoking team drooping before it, had just drawn up at the steps. Two masculine figures, carrying bags, emerged from the interior, and from the driver's seat a muffled shape—a cylinder of wrappings which appeared to have a lively human core—gave forth much loud and profane language. The isolation and remoteness of her surroundings had already begun to affect the town-bred young lady. She ran to the door of the parlor, as ingenuously curious to see the new arrivals and find out who they were as though she had lived in Antelope for a year.

Looking down the hall she saw the front door open violently inward and two men hastily enter. The wind seemed to blow in and before Perley's boy could press the door shut the snow had whitened the damp matting. No stage passed through Antelope in these days of its decline, and the curiosity felt by Rose was shared by the whole hotel. The swing door to the bar opened and men pressed into the aperture. Mrs. Perley came up from the kitchen, wiping a dish. Cora appeared in the dining-room doorway, and in answer to Miss Cannon's, inquiringly-lifted eyebrows, called across the hall:

"It's the Murphysville stage on the down-trip to Rocky Bar. I guess they thought they couldn't make it. The driver don't like to run no risks and so he's brought 'em round this way and dumped 'em here. There ain't but two passengers. That's them."

She indicated the two men who, standing by the hall stove, were divesting themselves of their wraps. One of them was a tall upright old man with a sweep of grizzled beard covering his chest, and gray hair falling from the dome of a bald head.

The other was much younger, tall also, and spare to leanness. He wore a gray fedora hat, and against its chill, unbecoming tint, his face, its prominent, bony surface nipped by the cold to a raw redness, looked sallow and unhealthy. With an air of solicitude he laid his overcoat across a chair, brushing off the snow with a careful hand. Buttoned tight in a black cutaway with the collar turned up about his neck, he had an appearance of being uncomfortably compressed into garments too small for him. His shiny-knuckled, purplish hands, pinching up the shoulders of his coat over the chair back, were in keeping with his general suggestion of a large-boned meagerly covered lankness. The fact that he was smooth-shaven, combined with the unusual length of dark hair that appeared below his hat-brim, lent him a suggestion of something interestingly unconventional, almost artistic. In the region where he now found himself he would have been variously set down as a gambler, a traveling clergyman, an actor, or perhaps only a vender of patent medicines who had some odd attractive way of advertising himself, such as drawing teeth with an electrical appliance, or playing the guitar from the tail-board of his showman's cart.

Now, having arranged his coat to its best advantage, he turned to Perley and said with a curiously deep and resonant voice:

"And, mine host, a stove in my bedroom, a stove in my bedroom or I perish."

Cora giggled and threw across the hall to Miss Cannon a delighted murmur of:

"Oh, say, ain't he just the richest thing?"

"You've got us trapped and caged here for a spell, I guess," said the older man. "Any one else in the same box?"

"Oh, you'll not want for company," said Perley, pride at the importance of the announcement vibrating in his tone. "We've got Willoughby here from the Bella K. with his four setter dogs, and Bill Cannon and his daughter up from the coast."

"Do You Think They'll Ever Find Him?"

"Bill Cannon!"—the two men stared and the younger one said:

"Bill Cannon, the Bonanza King from San Francisco?"

"That's him all right," nodded Perley. "Up here to see the diggings at Greenhide and snowed in same as you."

Here Rose, fearing the conversation might turn upon herself, slipped from the doorway into the passage and up the stairs to her own room.

An hour later as she stood before the glass making her toilet for supper, a knock at the door ushered in Cora, already curled, powdered and beribboned for that occasion, a small kerosene lamp in her hand. In the bare room, its gloom only partly dispelled by the light from a similar lamp on the bureau and the red gleam from the stove, Miss Cannon was revealed in the becoming half-dusk made by these imperfectly-blending illuminations, a pink silk dressing-gown loosely enfolding her, a lightly brushed-in suggestion of fair hair behind her ears and on her shoulders. Her comb was in her hand and Cora realized with an uplifting thrill that she had timed her visit correctly and was about to learn the mysteries of Miss Cannon's coiffure.

Neatly Evaded Apology.

One day, Beckmann, the comic actor, was induced to take off a well-known newspaper editor, Frankel by name, in one of the characters he was representing in Berlin. He performed his task so cleverly that at the close the audience broke out into loud calls for Frankel. The journalist brought an action, and Beckmann was condemned to go to the house of the insulted party and there beg his pardon in the presence of witnesses. At the hour appointed Frankel sat in the circle of his family, together with a number of relatives and friends whom he had convened for the occasion, waiting the arrival of the delinquent. He tarried long, and half an hour had passed in weary suspense, when, at last, the door opened, and Beckmann put his head in and asked: "Does Mr. Melr live here?" "Oh, no," answered Frankel, "he lives next door." "Ah, then I beg your pardon," said the actor, and hastily withdrew, having thus acquitted himself of the imposed penance to the great annoyance of Frankel, and the intense amusement of the assembled witnesses.

There never was at time when people appreciated the real merits of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy more than now. ## BOUND TO EXERT INFLUENCE Effects of the Passion of Sympathy, No Matter on What Object It is Lavished.

It is by the passion of sympathy that we enter into the concerns of others; that we are moved as they are moved, and are never suffered to be indifferent spectators of almost anything which men can do or suffer. For sympathy must be considered as a sort of substitution, by which we are put into the place of another man, and affected in a good measure as he is affected; so that this passion may either partake of the nature of those which regard self-preservation, and turning upon pain may be a source of the sublime; or it may turn upon ideas of pleasure, and then, whatever has been said of the social affections, whether they regard society in general, or only some particular modes of it, may be applicable here.

It is by this principle chiefly that poetry, painting and other affecting arts transmute their passion from one breast to another, and are often capable of grafting a delight on wretchedness, misery and death itself. It is a common observation that objects in the reality which would shock, are, in tragical and such like representations, the source of a very high species of pleasure. This, taken as a fact, has been the cause of much reasoning. This satisfaction has been commonly attributed, first, to the comfort we receive in considering that so melancholy a story is no more than a fiction; and next, the contemplation of our own freedom from evils we see represented. I am afraid it is a practice much too common, in inquiries of this nature, to attribute the cause of feelings which merely arise from the mechanical structures of our bodies, or from the natural form or constitution of our minds, to certain conclusions of the reasoning faculty on the objects presented to us; for I have some reason to apprehend that the influence of reason in producing our passions is nothing near so extensive as is commonly believed.—Edmund Burke.

Now is the time to get rid of your rheumatism. You can do it by applying Chamberlain's Liniment and massaging the parts freely at each application. For sale by All Dealers.

TO MANAGE THE TAFT CAMPAIGN

Charles Dewey Hilles Selected as Chairman.

COMMITTEE READY FOR WORK

Republicans Take Initial Steps Toward Organizing an Aggressive Campaign in Behalf of the President, Whose Private Secretary Has Been Selected to Direct the Affairs of the National Committee.

Washington, July 10.—The nine members of the Republican national committee acting as a subcommittee after conferences with President Taft, chose Charles D. Hilles, secretary to President Taft, as chairman of the national committee and James B. Reynolds of Massachusetts, a member of the tariff board, as secretary. Chairman Hilles and the full national committee will meet on Friday, July 19, in New York, to appoint a treasurer, other officers, an executive committee and an advisory committee. Otto Bannard of New York, Charles G. Dawes and David R. Forgan of Chicago, John Wanamaker of Philadelphia, E. F. Swinney of Kansas City and John Hays Hammond of Washington were all considered for the office of treasurer, but not even a tentative decision was reached. Mr. Hilles will resign his office as secretary to the president on Saturday night. It is thought unlikely that Mr. Taft will appoint a successor, but will turn the business of the executive offices over to the two assistant secretaries, Rudolph Forster and Sherman Allen. Headquarters of the national committee are to be opened in New York the first of next week. The opening of middle western headquarters at Chicago and Pacific coast headquarters at Portland, Ore., was practically decided on. Ralph E. Williams, former Republican national committeeman for Oregon, was practically selected to take charge of the far western offices. The chairman of the national committee will be surrounded or supported by an executive board or campaign committee, of which William Barnes, Jr., of New York probably will be chairman and in charge of the campaign in the east, while Joseph B. Keating of Indiana, as a member of this board, will have immediate supervision of the campaign in the middle west. The campaign for the re-election of Mr. Taft will be pushed with vigor after it is opened, and there will be a determined fight to preserve the Republican organization in every state and in every subdivision of every state. Unless the president's mind undergoes a change he will not make a speaking tour of the country.

CULEBRA CUT AGAIN IS CAUSING ALARM

Great Earth Slide Delays Canal Work.

Colon, July 10.—Canal officials do not attempt to conceal their anxiety over a great earth slide which has started in Culebra cut. Already several million cubic yards of earth have moved. The shifting soil gives promise of worse to come. The grave danger lies in the possibility of the cut itself being flooded, which disaster inevitably would delay the opening of the Panama canal. It is estimated by the canal commission that it will take one steam shovel working steadily at least a year to clear away the present movement of earth. The alarming fact, however, is that the slide extends back into the hill to within 100 feet of the east diversion, which is a channel designed to keep streams out of the cut. If the break should reach the diversion the cut certainly would be flooded and all operations would be stopped temporarily. Despite the alarming nature of the trouble canal engineers had discounted it in advance and say they are confident they will master the slide before it becomes serious.

Not an Auto.

"The late Henry C. Lea," said a Philadelphia litterateur, "wrote the best history of the Spanish Inquisition that has ever appeared. Mr. Lea was venerated as a historian all over the world, but in his native city few had even so much as heard his name. "A prophet without honor," you know—and Mr. Lea used to tell an anecdote on this head. "It seems that he was dining one evening in Rittenhouse Square, and his host's little daughter, who had come in, after the English fashion, with the dessert, said to her father: "Papa, what is an auto-da-fe?" "The father, ignoring the world's greatest authority on this subject, made answer: "You'd better ask your Uncle Harry, dear. He knows more about these French machines than I do."

State Board of Veterinary Examiners Says Knightstown Man Committed Forgery.

ONCE REFUSED A LICENSE

A. O. Ernest Uses Father's Name,
Now Deceased, in Making Application—Dead Man's Letter.

"And here's a letter from a dead man."

This remark by Dr. O. L. Boor of Muncie, Ind., at a meeting of the State Board of Veterinary Examiners last night produced about the same result as if a skyrocket had come hurtling through the window and had struck the table around which members of the board were seated, says the Indianapolis Star.

For more than an hour the board had been perusing quietly the documentary evidence that is being considered at the present session, and the unusual remark at once caused excitement.

"How do you know it's a letter from a dead man?" queried Dr. William F. Myers of Fort Wayne, president of the board.

"Where does the dead man live?" asked Dr. C. I. Fleming of Terre Haute, vice president.

"I don't know where the man lives now," replied Dr. Boor, calmly, "but he used to live in Knightstown, Ind., and his name was W. R. Ernest. He has been dead for four years."

The board hurriedly glanced at the signature and then asked how Dr. Boor knew that the man was dead. In proof of his statement he produced a filed veterinary license with the word "dead" written across it.

"You are mistaken," said one member of the board. Did we not have an application from a man named Ernest some time ago?"

"Yes, we did," replied Dr. Boor. "That man was the son of W. R. Ernest. We refused him a license because we decided that he was not capable of practicing under laws of this state, and this letter signed 'W. R. Ernest' was written by A. O. Ernest, the son of the dead man."

Dr. Boor alleged that young Ernest, after having been refused a license forged his father's name to an application blank in order to procure a license here that would enable him to practice in North Dakota. The elder Mr. Ernest, before his death, was a licensed veterinarian, and his son, according to members of the board, had expected to profit by his father's record, expecting the board to be ignorant of the elder Ernest's death.

The younger Ernest had given his address at a drug store on North Illinois street, but a communication sent to that address resulted in the information that he was not there. Members of the board said that they will prosecute young Ernest if they can discover a law to cover his alleged offense.

ESTATE BEING SETTLED

Brother of Late James M. Moore is Named Administrator.

The estate of the late Sheriff James M. Moore of Shelby county, will be settled by his brother, William T. Moore of this county, who was in Shelbyville yesterday making some of the preliminary arrangements. He gave bond at the county clerk's office as administrator, the amount being $12,000. This indicates that the estate is considered worth at least $6,000. Sherman Oneal of this city, with whom the late sheriff was associated in the wool business, was in Shelbyville yesterday to assist in the settlement.

The funeral services of Mrs. Julia A. Turner were held this morning in the Hannagan church. Burial took place in the cemetery.

In the audience were representatives from every town in Hendricks county, while many came from Indianapolis, Greencastle and other cities.

MIABAUGH SIGNS THIRD BASEMAN

"Bill" Schieke of Hamilton Will be Seen Sunday in Rushville Uniform.

IS SAID TO BE VERY FAST MAN

A new third baseman will be seen in the Rushville line-up Sunday in the game with Lebanon. Manager Maibaugh has succeeded in signing a man, who is considered as fast as the balance of the infield. The player is William Schieke of Hamilton, O. "Bill" is said to be a fast fielder and a good hitter and should make a valuable man for the Rushville team.

Manager Maibaugh is highly elated over the success he had in securing Schieke and is satisfied that the team with the new third baseman will be a winner. Schieke played last year with Liberty and was considered one of the best semi-pro players in the State. The third base job has been the weak place on the local team and a good man will be welcomed by the fans.

ON ENFORCED VACATION

Farmers Come to City Unable to Work Because of Rain.

Many farmers were in Rushville today, due to their forced vacation on account of the recurrence of the heavy rains every day. Probably the heaviest rain of the last two weeks fell this morning. Farmers are beginning to complain about the protracted wet spell. Although it is helpful to some things, it is growing monotonous, and is injurious to the wheat that has been out. Although many threatening storm clouds have arisen here in the last two weeks the rains have been accompanied by little thunder and lightning.

JOHN CARR IS BALL PLAYER

Local Young Man Manages and Plays on Prescott Team.

John Carr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen L. Carr, is developing into a real ball player, according to advices from Prescott, Arizona, where he is now employed. A team made of Prescott firemen challenged a team of young men made up mostly of college students home on their vacation. John Carr managed the latter team and was one member of the battery. They are to play three games to decide the championship. The first game played was won by the college students.

CHECK FOR $195 GOES UNCASHED

William Downward of Manilla Makes Enforced Visit in Shelbyville
White Clothier Holds Bag.

DROPS SAVINGS IN A STORE

Proprietor Appoints Himself Guardian and Decides Downward is Drunk—Police Take Hand.

William Downward, familiarly known in Manilla as "Kentucky Bill," made an enforced visit in Shelbyville yesterday. He intended to leave shortly after his arrival there, but was detained by the unusual action of Phil Miller, a Shelbyville clothier, who acted as self-appointed guardian of Downward, because he allowed, on account of the natural swagger of the man, that he was intoxicated and unable to look after his own financial affairs.

Downward was enroute to Cloverdale to accept a carpenter's job, and he carried with him a check for $195. The amount represented Downward's whole financial standing in this world and had been received by him only recently for a small farm he sold near Manilla. Downward lives on Lon Mull's farm near Manilla.

When Downward arrived he had a $10 bill in addition to the check, but he went to the Miller store and purchased a suit of clothes and spent all his ten.

Downward did not miss the check until he went to an East Washington street saloon, where he was intending to purchase a set of carpenter's tools. He immediately returned to the Miller store accompanied by a few friends and the trouble began.

Miller at first denied that he had found the check, but later admitted the find. He, however, refused to give it to Downward, saying that the latter was in no condition to care for the large sum of money. Miller appointed himself guardian for Downward and told the latter's friends that they were with him to spend the amount of the check when it should be cashed.

No manner of persuasion could cause Miller to give up the check and he later went to the office of Prosecutor Cheney where in the absence of the prosecutor he gave the check to the office girl with the instructions to lock it up in the safe.

The police were called into the case by Downward but were unable to procure his check for him and he was forced to postpone his trip to Cloverdale.

MUSICAL COMEDY TROUPE EMPLOYED

Company of Seven People Will be the Premier Attraction at Catholic Carnival This Year.

SUCCESSFUL EVENT EXPECTED

Preparations are being made daily for the young men's Catholic carnival which will be given at the Catholic school park July 23, 24, 25 and 26. Will Glaska went to Shelbyville yesterday and employed Edmunds and Levell, a musical troupe of seven people. It is said to be an attraction of extraordinary merit. The company will be housed in the old church hall in the park. In previous years home talent vaudeville has been given, but this year a different course will be pursued. The managers are expecting the most successful carnival ever held this year.

DOES RICHMOND MAN WANT JOB?

Story is That Dr. Zimmerman is Seriously Considering Race
For Congress.

BELIEVES THAT HE COULD WIN

If he Decides to be Candidate, Mayor Says he Will Make "Some" Fight.

Does Mayor Zimmerman hold a judiciary office? asks the Richmond Palladium.

In a way this question is important for upon the answer to it may hinge whether Dr. Zimmerman will become a candidate for congress from the Sixth district. Although Mayor Zimmerman has not been "hankering" after the job of representing the people of the Sixth district in the lower lawmaking body at Washington, yet he has considered the idea. He says a number of friends have urged him to announce his candidacy.

Under present laws the mayor, according to some, can not run for another office until his term expires, as he holds the office of police judge in connection with his mayoralty duties. However, the judgeship of the city court was taken voluntarily by him, as he was not required to fill the office as part of his duties as mayor.

The question now is whether, in case he should resign as police judge, he could become a candidate for congress. Some attorneys in this city hold that he could, and others hold that he could not.

In the event that this question is settled in a satisfactory manner and Mayor Zimmerman decides to become a candidate, he says he will make "some" fight for the nomination.

The mayor says the split in the Republican party does not bother him a bit. That would not effect his candidacy at all, he says, for he would go right into the fight and get the support of the followers of Taft and Roosevelt, because, as he frankly admitted, he's a mixer and a "man who does things."

"It would take work to beat Finly Gray at election time, but I believe that I know how to work hard enough to do that," the mayor says.

Anyway, if "Doc" does not decide to come out for congress, he intends to make another race for the office of mayor of the city of Richmond. He is now on his fourth term.

FUNERAL TODAY.

Funeral services of Mrs. John Kessler, whose death occurred at their home a mile and a half north-east of Manilla Monday, were held at the German church, of which she was a member at eleven o'clock this morning. The services were in charge of Dr. G. G. Winter of Indianapolis, who was assisted by the Rev. W. R. Jinnett of Manilla. Interment was made in the German cemetery.

The funeral services of Mrs. Eddis Beaver will be held tomorrow afternoon in the M. P. church in New Salem.

HOW many of your hard earned dollars go up in ice
each year? A great many more than you
would like to have, undoubtedly. The
"main question"
with most of us is how we can best reduce this number of dollars to a minimum. The solution of the problem lies with the refrigerator.

The price you pay to-day for a refrigerator is but a small part of the price you will pay in the life time of the refrigerator for ice.

It is therefore, economy to buy the best refrigerator—the refrigerator, which because of its scientific construction and superior insulation, will use the least ice and will stand the hardest usage for the greatest number of years.

Let Us Demonstrate the
New Iceless Refrigerator which maintains a temperature of 45° without the use of ice.
